Anti-Money Laundering and Financial Crime; Verifying Your Identity and Address

What is Money Laundering?

When criminals make money from their activities they need to make the proceeds appear as if they were legitimately earned and can do this, in part, by placing the money with financial institutions, such as banks, investment companies and insurance companies.

The funds, when withdrawn, may then appear to the authorities and other institutions, as legitimate income generated through investment activity.

How can we help prevent Money Laundering and Financial Crime?

Under current regulations for the prevention of money laundering and financial crime, abrdn has a responsibility to verify the identity of all our applicants and any associated third parties (such as an Attorney or Executor). We ensure our responsibilities are met by asking you for certified copies or original versions of official documents that confirm your identity. This is known as "Customer Due Diligence".

This makes it more difficult for criminals to use our services as we have verified information that can be provided to the authorities to assist in their investigations and is a key control to prevent potential identity theft and fraud committed against our clients.

Under what circumstances do I have to prove my identity?

We may contact you to request additional documentation to prove your identity to satisfy the legal requirements:

- if you are a new customer and we have been unable to verify your details electronically
- if you are a new customer and we haven't received enough evidence of your identity or,
- if you are an existing customer the laws surrounding Anti-Money Laundering may have changed. We need to request additional evidence of your identity to keep our records up to date and to prevent you encountering difficulties in the future

What do I need to provide?

Please see the list of documents overleaf.

What if I do not provide the requested documents as proof of my identity?

If we do not receive the relevant documents requested from you, we reserve the right, as stated in our Terms and Conditions, to withhold the proceeds of any redemptions of your investment until such time that we are in receipt of the documents requested. It is therefore important to note that if you decided to sell your holding(s), these Anti-Money Laundering regulations may prevent us from releasing the proceeds to you without first having obtained appropriate identity verification documents.

Why do I need to provide information on where my funds have come from or where I want the sale of investment sent?

As a financial institution, as well as being required to verify the identity of our customers, we also need to understand if there are any third parties funding your investment. In addition to this, we are required to identify the source of the funds, source of wealth and the expected investment activity of our investors to ensure that we know our customers in order to assist in the prevention of money laundering and financial crime. We may therefore require additional information regarding your personal wealth.

If we are asked to pay money to any third parties associated to an account, for example the executor of an estate, we will also require identity verification documents from them.

What if I live in a care home and do not have standard documentation?

In this instance, we will be able to accept proof of identity in the form of either a HMRC tax coding notification letter, or benefits notification letter from the Pensions Service. Proof of residency will be accepted in the form of an original letter from your care home confirming your current address.

What if I do not have the documents you need?

Please contact abrdn Customer Services on 0345 113 6966 or +44 (0) 1268 445 488 from outside the UK. Please note that call charges may vary.
